My dad grew up in a modest home, a son in a family who just got by. His family didn't have much, but neither did anyone else.

Their family went to the Church of Christ in Granite, Oklahoma. W. D. Hockaday (1855-1944), one of the elders of their church, was very influential in his life. His son, Don Hockaday, Jr., preached at the church. W. D. Hockaday owned a hardware store, and he was also an encourager of good works. He helped found Cordell Christian College in 1907, with its first President being J. N. Armstrong. Hockaday's sister was Sally Hockaday Benson, the wife of George S. Benson (later President of Harding University). My dad knew none of this as a boy. What he knew is that Hockaday was known in their community as a good and generous man.

My dad enjoyed telling a story about Christmas in Granite during the Great Depression years. Each year, Hockaday would pass out Christmas presents to all the children in town. Children would line up in front of Hockaday's store and wait their turn. Inside the store, Hockaday sat by a potbellied stove as each child would pass by. He would give them a paper sack with a few nuts, fruit, and a piece of candy. For many of these children, including my dad, that would be the only Christmas present they would receive.

Fast forward many years later. I remember leaving Bible class on a particular rainy Wednesday evening. After Bible class at church, Our family drove to a house not far from the Pleasant Grove Church building in Dallas. We knocked and stood on the front porch of the house. A young family came to the door (the entire family!). My parents had brought a sack of groceries.

My dad handed the father the key to what had been my mother's car. My parents were trying to help this family, giving them groceries and practically giving away this car. As a young boy, I watched all of this closely.

On another occasion, when I was in elementary school, a little girl came to live with us. I didn't understand then, but a mother at our church with a number of children could no longer care for them. Now this little girl was staying with our family. In fact, the whole congregation was involved in looking out for the children of this family. Somehow, the willingness to serve and be helpful had caused them to take in this little child for a number of weeks. My parents responded with graciousness and generosity toward this young girl.

I have thought about what my parents did on these occasions and how these moments impacted me. I can't help but wonder if these seeds of the good deeds were not first planted in my dad's heart through the generosity of W. D. Hockaday many, many years earlier.

Can God use a family like yours? Absolutely. Better yet, he may already be using your family to plant seeds of faith, love, and generosity into the hearts of your children.

Children pick up so much from their parents.

They hear how you talk about the church, both positively and negatively.

They hear how you talk to your own parents, the words as well as the tone of voice.

They hear and see how you respond to others, whether with grace or contempt.

One thing for sure, our children are being shaped into a certain kind of people. The question is, "Are we intentional about shaping our children?"

BECKY NICHOLSON

Becky Nicholson was born in Austin, Texas. Her parents moved back to Houston when she was six months old, having lived there previously. Her mother was a housewife, and her father was an insurance salesman.

Becky grew up in the southeast Houston area off Edgebrook and I-45 and attended Dobie High School and San Jacinto College. She has been a registered nurse since 1976 and is still employed on a part-time/per diem basis.

Becky was baptized at the age of 20. She and her fiancé were baptized at the same time. She has been widowed since July 2013. She does not have any children or grandchildren.

Becky came to us from the Southside Church of Christ in Pasadena TX. She placed membership at Pearland in May 2014. She made her decision to worship with us because of the friendliness of the people and DC's preaching style. Her favorite Bible passage is Hebrews 13:5.

She loves plants and interior decorating and enjoys country and rock music concerts. (You may have seen a recent picture of Becky and Gretchen on Facebook with The Fab Five!) She also enjoys traveling and sightseeing. Sunshine, talking with friends, and going to a concert make her day!

We are so happy that Becky is part of our church family.

Weekly Bible trivia question. Please submit answers to the elders. The first correct answer reported to the office will be recognized and published in the next bulletin. Here goes...Six by sixty, I was on the plain when all the music was played. Who am I?

Daily Bible chapter reading schedule, beginning Thursday, April 28, 2016:

- Thursday—1 Corinthians 7-8
- Friday—Genesis 44-47
- Saturday—1 Samuel 6-10
- Sunday—Psalms 33-35
- Monday—Job 23-24
- Tuesday—Isaiah 62-66
- Wednesday—Mark 3-4

The correct answer to last week’s question was: Solomon had two navies. One was anchored in Ezion-geber on the Red Sea and was used to ship gold (1 Kings 9:26). A second navy was at Tarshish and was used to bring in gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks (1 Kings 10:22). No one gave the correct answer to last week’s question. I am required to include a trivia question each week. If you are submitting correct answers to the elders, I am not aware of it. I apologize if a correct answer was given that was not relayed to me or to the office.
